Smita Raut said in her lecture that, in this online era libraries have taken a step forward by using software in their libraries. All librarians think about the user using library software for library work and giving advance service to the user, so our library is ready to provide services by OPAC. Information about the collection of the library, its utility, and many other facilities such as book searching are provided by the Online Public Access Catalogue. It is very useful to save the time of the readers. Convinced this through PPT.
